Anita has been a California CSR and she worked as an official court reporter in the Los Angeles Municipal and Superior Courts from 1974 to 1992. During this time, the love of teaching inspired Anita to teach evening court reporting classes for about 12 years.

In 1991, Anita was instrumental in introducing the California courts to the first complete CIC (Computer Integrated Courtroom) environment, including video synchronization, wherein she reported back-to-back daily trials for over a year with her partner, Pat Cuneo, networked to 11 computers. At this time Anita researched, developed, and perfected her realtime skills. She gave numerous seminars and presentations on this exciting CIC technology to reporters, judges, court administrators, and attorneys and thereafter became an active member of the National Speakers Association.

This background led to the creation of her successful, hands-on, world-renowned workshops and seminars since 1993, fulfilling her personal commitment and life vision to making a positive, meaningful difference in people's lives. She has expanded her training to include a transition to broadcast captioning, CART and attorney seminars on effective record-making.
